

Editor-in-chief's voice

Editorial board consulting editors, section editors – verification

Dear Friends and Colleagues,
Dear Readers,

A scientific journal cannot exist without the active involvement of competent scientific collaborators, acting as editors and reviewers. All editors, however, are active physicians, burdened with their own scientific and education endeavors. Therefore, the scope of duties of members of the CEJU editorial team (Consulting Editors and Editorial Board) was so determined as not to excessively burden these individuals and allow them to remain fully involved in their personal work.

The situation is different, however, in the case of Section Editors. Members of the Section Editors are in fact CEJU editors in a much broader sense. Their duties and responsibilities are much larger, covering, among others, managing articles submitted to CEJU from the moment of submission until the final qualification. For these reasons, people who are particularly creative and interested in contributing to the journal are chosen to be Section Editors.

It is important to us to cooperate with dynamic individuals, because only this form of collaboration is reasonable and fair. That is why the journal's editorial office periodically verifies the involvement and commitment of our editors. The results of this verification are changes in the composition of the Editorial Board, Consulting Editors and Section Editors. The changes we made this year were carried out on the basis of the analysis of activity during the last three years.

We would like to thank the selfless efforts of all of our editorial members in the creation and development of CEJU. We kindly invite new, creative individuals who wish to realize their ideas and concepts, to which we are always open.

Tomasz Drewa,
*Editor-in-Chief, Central European Journal of Urology
Vice-president of the Polish
Urological Association*