Dear Readers, Authors and Reviewers!

This fall we will be launching a new editorial panel for the Central European Journal of Urology on the ScholarOne platform. The preparatory work for this event has taken a long time, but thanks to the efforts of the President of the Polish Urological Association, Prof. Piotr Chłosta, a complicated negotiation process was completed. The editorial panel has a central task in the life of a scientific journal; it acts as an “interface” connecting the authors with the editorial team.

For us here at the Central European Journal of Urology, it is extremely important that this interface is of the highest quality and we hope that it will meet the expectations of our authors, reviewers and readers. The correct operation of the editorial panel should improve the flow of information between those involved in the preparation of publications. As an editorial team, we realize that each newly introduced process can have its small kinks and errors. For this reason, we are open to all questions and suggestions. I look forward to seeing you on our new platform!
